

Module 8: Students With Solutions

Education: Share the “Students with Solutions” video and student handout

Show or direct your students to watch the “Students With Solutions” video, which is all about the power of intentional actions and how to help create a kinder, more inclusive, and accepting world. The video is available here.

After watching the video, share the accompanying handout with your students that include definitions, along with ideas to be intentional with acts of kindness, acceptance, and inclusion. Download the “Students With Solutions” Student Guide here.

Interaction: Share your ideas!

After your students watch the video and learn more about intentional acts of kindness, acceptance, and inclusion, encourage them to create a drawing, design graphics, take photographs, write poetry, or even film videos responding to the themes within the video and the student handout. The content can come from real-life examples or ideas about how to be more intentional with your actions.

Guide students to think through how to illustrate their ideas, doing what best fits their skills, talents, and interests. Provide a few suggestions such as:

- Draw a picture of kids inviting each other to play with word bubbles for dialogue
- Tell a story about how you think being kind, again and again, impacts others at your school, in your community, or online
- Write a poem about what it feels like to do something that is kind, accepting, and inclusive
- Film a video with you sharing your ideas about ways to be more intentional with acts of kindness, acceptance, and inclusion

Collect and submit the creative work from students for a chance to receive awards and recognition! Submissions of images, writing, or videos can be mailed to PACER's National Bullying Prevention Center at 8161 Normandale Blvd., Minneapolis, MN 55437 or by emailing bullying411@PACER.org. Entries will be accepted through May 15, 2020.

Additional media activities

Elementary school – Video – All In

The music video for All In shares the power that we have when we stand together to create kind and inclusive schools and communities.

As a follow-up activity, recreate the dance from the All In music video with your students over video chat, such as Zoom.

Middle and high school - Video – Turn a Life Around

Bullying knocks down thousands of kids every day, but when one person stands, another will stand with them. You can be that person, you can turn a life around, and PACER's National Bullying Prevention Center can help. Remember, the end of bullying begins with you.

As a follow-up activity, have students complete the You Can...worksheet. Students will read through some of the ways that they experience bullying, and then think through ways they can “turn a life around” and support someone experiencing bullying.
